

I don,t think that the use of power lines for communications is a good idea due to the interference that it will cause to goverment ussage as well as the amature bands . These bands need to have as little interfernce as possible during storms along the coast for emergency communications. As every one knows power lines are the first thing that goes down during a storm therefore bpl would be useless in these situations... w4xlg Lyle